

Industrial Action Toolkit: UK Border Force

Home Office

Key information

- The Public Commercial Services (PCS) Union's National Executive Committee has announced strike action affecting UK Border Force on 17, 18, 19 and 20 February (until circa 7am).
- The proposed strike action will impact passengers and freight entering the UK via the following ports: Port of Calais, Port of Dunkirk, Port of Dover and the Coquelles Channel Tunnel Terminal.
- Although this strike action directly targets inbound travel to the UK from the ports listed above, all those who are due to travel into any UK port during the proposed strike action should be prepared to face longer wait times at UK border control and check with their operator before they travel.
- Border Force's number one priority is to keep our borders safe and secure, and we will never compromise on this.
- Border Force will continue to maintain the checks we need to keep the public safe, while minimising disruption.
- Border Force are working closely with all UK ports and carriers to ensure we have robust plans in place to minimise any delays if strike action goes ahead, however travellers should be prepared for disruption and should check with their operators before travelling.
- Resource and staffing requirements at every port are reviewed continually by Border Force who work closely with port operators to ensure resources are deployed to meet demand as and when they are required.
- Our eGates will be operating as normal and we encourage passengers who are able to use eGates to do so. Passengers can find more information about eGates here.
- We recommend all travellers check the latest advice before travelling.

Strike action to affect travellers and goods entering the UK

We have prepared this communications toolkit to support you when communicating to your customers, passengers and stakeholders about disruption at the UK border as a result of strike action.

Lines for passengers and goods arriving into the UK

Home Office

The below messaging can be used to inform and prepare travellers in a timely manner about the impact of potential strike action and what it means for them, including advance warning to expect delays when entering the UK.

Please share across all of your communications channels including social media, email, mobile apps, SMS messaging, websites, screens and tannoys.

Be prepared

- Passengers who are due to travel into the UK during the proposed strike action may face longer wait times at border control.
- Planned strike action may affect travellers entering the UK. Please check the latest advice with operators before travelling.
- Please be patient and respect officers who are working to keep the UK border secure and support passengers during strike action.

Hauliers

- Hauliers who are moving goods during the proposed strike action should be prepared for potential disruption and longer queues at Ports and Inland Border Facilities.
- Please check with your operator before travelling, be prepared for delays and carefully plan your movements if they coincide with days of strike action.

Lines for passengers arriving into the UK

The below messaging can be used for passengers as they prepare to arrive into the UK, for example for carriers to use on the tannoy system before disembarkation or for ports to use on screens/tannoys as passengers disembark.

Our aim is to prepare passengers to expect longer wait times at border control due to strike action, have time to react accordingly and ensure passengers are patient and kind to staff who are working to support them.

Be prepared

- Due to strike action by the Public and Commercial Services Union affecting UK Border Force on 17, 18, 19 and 20 February until circa 7am, passengers should be prepared for longer wait times at border control.
- Border Force has worked closely with affected ports to ensure adequate resourcing of staff to carry out passport checks and are working really hard to support the processing of travellers through control points as quickly and efficiently as possible.
- We understand that waiting in a longer queue is frustrating. We apologise and encourage you to prepare yourself for any delays.
- Thank you in advance for your patience. Please do be patient and respect Border Force officers who are working to keep the UK border secure and support passengers during strike action.
- To help avoid further delays, please make sure you have all your documents ready for inspection before arriving at the border.

eGates

- Where eGates are available, they will be operating as usual throughout the strike periods.
- Border Force encourage all travellers eligible to use eGates to do so; which is the quickest and most efficient method of crossing the border.
- There are staff on hand to help you through eGates if you are unsure.

The following Q&A is designed to help with your communications. The below is a guide, please do not copy and paste into your comms.

What plans are in place to avoid disruption and queues at the border during the strike action?

- Border Force continues to work closely with port operators and carriers to make sure all travellers can have a safe and hassle-free journey; however passengers should be prepared for potential disruption and may experience longer wait times at the border if strike action goes ahead.
- Border Force and the travel industry work together very closely at a local and national level and have regular meetings to understand demand while keeping the public safe.
- Resource and staffing requirements at every port are continually reviewed by Border Force.

What checks will you be making on the day? Will you be relaxing them to minimise queues?

- Border Force will never compromise on security. Border Force will continue its vital work. Maintaining the security of the UK border is our top priority.

What are doing to ensure we maintain a safe and secure border?

- Border Force's number one priority is to keep our borders safe and secure for all travellers and we will not compromise on this.
- Border Force uses a range of methods to identify potential criminal activity at the border and will continue to ensure that those who attempt to break the law are dealt with accordingly.

Will outbound travel be impacted as well as inbound?

- Border Force operate inbound controls only. We do not expect outbound to be affected.
- Those intending to travel over strike days should keep up-to-date with the latest advice from operators to check how the proposed strike action will affect their journey.

The following Q&A is designed to help with your communications. The below is a guide, please do not copy and paste into your comms.

Will the Border Force strike action just impact passengers, or will freight be impacted as well?

- Border Force are working closely with all UK ports and carriers to ensure we have robust plans in place to minimise any delays if strike action goes ahead.
- However, hauliers and passengers should be prepared for disruption and should take action to plan ahead and check with their operators before travelling.

Will all contingency staff, including volunteers and military personnel, deployed at the border be properly trained?

- Yes. All contingency staff deployed will be sufficiently trained for the activities they are being required to undertake.
- Border Force will never compromise on security.

Are military personnel just for checking passports?

- Military personnel, civil servants and volunteers are currently being trained to support a range of services including Border Force at airports and ports in the event of strike action.
- We don't comment on operational deployments, but all contingency resources will be sufficiently trained for the activities they are being required to undertake.
- Military Aid to the Civil Authorities (MACA) is a long standing and established process which allows the specialist capabilities of the UK Armed Forces to be utilised to support civil authorities responding to a domestic emergency, whilst also ensuring that the use of the Military is a last, not first, resort.
